PROFESSIONAL SUMMARY

I produce playable ads for mobile games — 30+ a month across 15 casual and midcore titles, more than 400 shipped in total. I'm the only producer on my team, so I own the whole path: researching the game and its competitors, finding the hook and the mechanic, writing the GDD, briefing developers and artists, reviewing builds and delivering to the ad networks. Several of my concepts became the client's internal benchmarks and are still the reference new playables iterate from. Before games I spent 6+ years in advertising, finishing as a Group Head Creator leading a team of 7.

WORK EXPERIENCE

Studio Cation Inc. | Los Angeles, CA · Remote | 05/2025 - Present

Playable Ads Producer & Strategist | Game Mechanics Designer

- Produce 30+ HTML5 playable ads a month across 15 casual and midcore mobile titles — 400+ shipped in total.
- Only producer on the team: I run many titles in parallel, usually on tight deadlines, and hold quality steady at that volume.
- Several of my concepts became the client's internal benchmarks and are still the reference new playables iterate from.
- Turn briefs, references and competitor examples into hooks, core mechanics, tutorial flows and end-card direction.
- Write production-ready briefs and GDDs covering gameplay logic, visual direction, technical notes and the intended player flow.
- Brief and coordinate developers, artists, asset producers and QA, keeping the original idea intact through to the final build.
- Review builds for game feel, onboarding, readability and ad network readiness, and turn that into specific revision notes.
- Ship to AppLovin, Unity Ads / LevelPlay, ironSource, Mintegral and Moloco, building to each network's specs and size limits.
- Use A/B learnings and client performance feedback to refine hooks, tutorial pacing and conversion moments.
- Use AI through the pipeline — research, references, concept prototyping, routine production — to test more ideas in the same week.
